

My soul is the part of me I least understand. Somewhat an illusive commodity... but I know this of my soul... "It believes". It believes in me, in you, in us, in the bond that we have embraced, and will continue throughout this life and whatever lies beyond.

My soul longs for something greater, is patient, is kind, not envy, not boastful, not proud, not rude, not self-seeking, not easily angered, keeps no record of wrongs, does not delight in evil, rejoices with the truth, always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres, never fails, and endures forever everlasting.

I'll forever love you... and this I vow to the end of time. All my love, for all your life.

How Passionate Can You Get On a First Date

A first date with someone can be very exciting and interesting. The suspense of meeting someone who you never met before, for the first time is even more intriguing.

It is not uncommon to have butterflies in your stomach and to change your clothing two or three times before leaving the house to meet this mystery person. If you have already met this person before and are on the first romantic date together, that is exciting too. Once on your date, you may wonder how passionate things will get. This is where the fun starts!

When on a first date, a couple discovers so many things about each other, including if there is chemistry between them or not. Chemistry can be a funny thing though. Often, couples on a date don't know if chemistry exists between them until a romantic gesture such as hand holding, a hug or a kiss happens. Other couples can sense chemistry between themselves and another person without even touching them. The type of chemistry that is felt even without a touch is very powerful and rare and should be recognized as true love, as that is what it is.

If there is chemistry between two people on a date, they should follow their hearts and see where it leads them. A couple should go as far as they mutually desire. There is no such thing as too far, if you are truly in love and the feelings are mutual.

The important thing is that you respect each other and take responsibility for your romantic actions. Don't get into something too quickly until you really know someone. Often first impressions are not

It is governed by a complex set of unwritten rules that are loosely defined as etiquette. Such rules dictate where, when, with whom and in what manner we all attract the opposite sex. We generally obey these unofficial rules by instinct but we also only become aware of the rules when someone commits a breach of them.

Dating or courtship is the process of choosing and attracting a mate for companionship, sex, marriage and/or sexual reproduction. It is also the pre-arranged meeting (exclusive) of two people with mutual interest in one another to communicate with and to comprehend through shared participation in social activities. According to western tradition, a date is an occasion when one socializes with a potential lover or spouse for the purpose of being deeply acquainted with each other as also to come to an understanding whether they wish to have a purposeful relationship.

Though dating was generally sponsored through friends or relatives, the Second World War diminished such opportunities to a great extent, giving rise to commercial dating agencies. Newspapers and magazine ads contributed to the cause too. However, post-Internet days have brought a sea change in dating and mate-finding anonymously. Ladies and men can now tap the online resources with the click of a mouse and carry on love duels without disclosing identity. Though this online intimacy can be instantly arousing, yet its pitfalls are of concern since none of the parties can ever guess an inch of the other's inner life or face read either of them. Finally, you need to trust your heart and your gut on how far you should take things in a relationship. If it feels right, it often is right. On the other hand, be cautious about primitive physical attraction, as it may not always correlate with feelings of true genuine love. You should be careful not to get emotionally hurt or hurt anyone else by acting on sexual desire and not on love. If both people are in the same frame of mind, that is ok, but you need to make sure that you are both on the same page in the romance department before going too far. Love and respect each other as friends first and follow your heart and mind after that.
