

My soul is the part of me I least understand. Somewhat an illusive commodity... but I know this of my soul... "It believes". It believes in me, in you, in us, in the bond that we have embraced, and will continue throughout this life and whatever lies beyond.

My soul longs for something greater, is patient, is kind, not envy, not boastful, not proud, not rude, not self-seeking, not easily angered, keeps no record of wrongs, does not delight in evil, rejoices with the truth, always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres, never fails, and endures forever everlasting.

I'll forever love you... and this I vow to the end of time. All my love, for all your life.

Language Barriers and Dating

Often, people fall in love with and date someone who does not speak the same language and is of another culture. In these situations, it is interesting to note the predominant sources of attraction between the two people. Body language most certainly plays a huge role in situations where verbal communication is difficult or non-existent due to language barriers.

It is said that love is a universal language and to some extent, this is very true. You don't have to speak the same language or be of the same culture to love and date someone. In fact, people are often very attracted to those who are almost their total opposite. There is something very exciting about being with your total opposite in a romantic context. Being attracted to one's opposite may be rooted in the idea that people often want to be someone different than they are, and so this need is satisfied by being with someone who is your opposite. On the other hand, some people are very happy with who they are and just enjoy being with someone who is different than themselves so that they feel even more complete.

There is something sexy about being with someone of another culture in the sense that your relationship has a very international spirit to it. When you look into the eyes of a person from another country or of another culture or nationality, it is almost like seeing a glimpse of that place so far away. The spirit of another place can be seen in a person's eyes, if you look deep enough. This is especially true if you cannot verbally communicate due to language barriers.

Online Advertising for Dating Services

Companies offering dating services are investing increasing amounts in advertising, according to a new study, with online advertising seeing particular growth.

Research carried out by Nielsen Monitor-Plus found that such firms in the US, in particular online dating sites, spent $127.3 million advertising online in 2006. This is up from $88.9 million spent the previous year and the second highest area of investment for dating services. Of the 12 dating services firms advertising online, seven companies were "almost exclusively using the internet for advertising", the report found.

The top ten dating services firms accounted for 96 per cent of the total advertising spend for the industry, some $290 million of $302 million.

It only makes sense to advertise your Dating Site online and it's even more important if your site is new in the industry.

When people date that are of different cultures, religions, values, languages and traditions, it can be both challenging yet very exciting. If you are in a relationship with someone who speaks another language, the communication between the two of you becomes both creative and innovative. Body language is often critical in these cases where you need to observe each other's body gestures to communicate back and forth. It is amazing how people can communicate in the absence of verbal communication. Often, actions communicate much more effectively than words.

Another interesting part about dating someone who speaks another language is that you can teach each other how to speak in each other's language. A romantic relationship of this kind can be transformed into an opportunity to learn a new language from the one you love. Language difference should not be viewed as a barrier but rather a challenge meant to be enjoyed! Body language can say more than enough, especially with regard to romance. Dating is meant to be fun, so if your date does not speak your language, perhaps you need to focus on other passionate ways to communicate!

Dating or courtship is the process of choosing and attracting a mate for companionship, sex, marriage and/or sexual reproduction. It is also the pre-arranged meeting (exclusive) of two people with mutual interest in one another to communicate with and to comprehend through shared participation in social activities. According to western tradition, a date is an occasion when one socializes with a potential lover or spouse for the purpose of being deeply acquainted with each other as also to come to an understanding whether they wish to have a purposeful relationship.

Though dating was generally sponsored through friends or relatives, the Second World War diminished such opportunities to a great extent, giving rise to commercial dating agencies. Newspapers and magazine ads contributed to the cause too. However, post-Internet days have brought a sea change in dating and mate-finding anonymously. Online dating services today provide unlimited dating extravaganza on the monitor without any commitment tagged to it. Ladies and men can now tap the online resources with the click of a mouse and carry on love duels without disclosing identity. Though this online intimacy can be instantly arousing, yet its pitfalls are of concern since none of the parties can ever guess an inch of the other's inner life or face read either of them. However, the world becoming more and more full of 'singles', online dating gives the opportunity to know more and more people and even find a life partner.
