

My soul is the part of me I least understand. Somewhat an illusive commodity... but I know this of my soul... "It believes". It believes in me, in you, in us, in the bond that we have embraced, and will continue throughout this life and whatever lies beyond.

My soul longs for something greater, is patient, is kind, not envy, not boastful, not proud, not rude, not self-seeking, not easily angered, keeps no record of wrongs, does not delight in evil, rejoices with the truth, always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres, never fails, and endures forever everlasting.

I'll forever love you... and this I vow to the end of time. All my love, for all your life.

had made. Each new relationship is a separate entity in itself and should be treated that way if possible.

Another significant lesson to be learned from being in various relationships is that you need to treat your partner as you want to be treated yourself. Show respect allows you to gain respect for yourself. If you want to be heard, be a good listener yourself. If you want patience and understanding, show some yourself. Basically couples mirror each other's behaviors after a while and if you shower your lover with caring, loving gestures and mannerisms, than you will receive these things in return. This is generally the case in most relationships.

Honesty is another key thing in all relationships. It is critical that the couple is always honest with each other at all times. There is no place for even the smallest lie in a happy and successful relationship. If you are always honest, you will both at least know the score. Sometimes honesty is good news, while sometimes honesty means hearing or saying something that may not be pleasant. Honesty is bitter sweet at times but it is necessary in all relationships. If you are honest with each other, trust is made easier.

Dating or courtship is the process of choosing and attracting a mate for companionship, sex, marriage and/or sexual reproduction. It is also the pre-arranged meeting (exclusive) of two people with mutual interest in one another to communicate with and to comprehend through shared participation in social activities. According to western tradition, a date is an occasion when one socializes with a potential lover or spouse for the purpose of being deeply acquainted with each other as also to come to an understanding whether they wish to have a purposeful relationship.

Though dating was generally sponsored through friends or relatives, the Second World War diminished such opportunities to a great extent, giving rise to commercial dating agencies. Newspapers and magazine ads contributed to the cause too. However, post-Internet days have brought a sea change in dating and mate-finding anonymously. Ladies and men can now tap the online resources with the click of a mouse and carry on love duels without disclosing identity. Though this online intimacy can be instantly arousing, yet its pitfalls are of concern since none of the parties can ever guess an inch of the other's inner life or face read either of them. However, the world becoming more and more full of 'singles', online dating gives the opportunity to know more and more people and even find a life partner.
